An Introduction from C4C's New Coordinator

Greetings,

My name is Berit Robnett and I started working with the New Mexico Forest and Watershed Restoration Institute (NMFWRRI) as an AmeriCorps VISTA in late August of this year. I'm a third generation New Mexican who grew up on the westside of Albuquerque. In my free time, I enjoy being outdoors, making jewelry, and reading. I graduated from the University of New Mexico in May of 2025 with an Earth and Planetary Science degree and a minor in Women's and Gender studies. I began my college career playing soccer for the University of Wyoming in 2020 where I then decided to transfer back home in 2022 and finish my schooling at UNM. I am forever thankful for my experiences and the newfound appreciation for my home state after spending time away.

In my role with the NMFWRRI, I will be focusing on collaboration efforts in the Santa Fe region and coordinating the Connecting for Conservation Santa Fe (C4C Santa Fe) Network. My goal is to continue to knit together collaborative groups and assist these groups with resource and knowledge sharing based on the differing priorities of these groups. After my initial contact and establishment within Connecting for Conservation (C4C) Santa Fe, I will use my toolkit to establish a C4C South Central network to uplift and connect the collaborative groups in the lower half of the state. I have experience working with communities through an intersectional lens consisting of education, outreach, advocacy, and participation. My main goals are to build community cohesion, provide resources for opportunities and events, and help to restore ecosystem health and functions across large landscapes.

To contact me directly, please email berit.robnett@nmhu.edu. I look forward to working together to create a strong, cohesive collaborative community!
